These files represent an irreplaceable source of medical knowledge and may be required for medicolegal purposes. They are considered as the central repository for all research conducted by the Air Force. Heighten public, congressional and intergovernmental interest in human and animal use oversight make it imperative that clinical investigation and other research documentation be maintained for the requested time period. The current review of radiation experimentation and interest in the informed consent process during the past fifty years is ample testimony to records maintenance in this area.		WITHDRAWN
