	BACKGROUND: The retention for this record series has been changed from "destroy when related records are destroyed, or when no longer needed" to a 125-year retention after rescission of recordkeeping requirement. A long-term retention will enable us to track former record series and support documents throughout the life cycle of a record series that have potential value to historians, planners, and appellates; and rights and interests of soldiers. For example, the Dupont litigation involves matters dating back to the 1880s. Since we have no way to narrow the scope by telling what records series were created then and their disposition, all Army records are now frozen. Army records comprise 44% of the Federal Records Center holdings with total Army freezes causing a burden on them and an additional expense to our reimbursable bill. Consequently, a 125-year retention after rescission of record series is appropriate and beneficial to all concerned.		WITHDRAWN 4-2-2001
